New Choice In Energy Providers

So what exactly is deregulation and what does it mean to consumers? The utilities industries (natural gas & electricity) are made up of three different components. Supply, transmission and distribution. Since the beginning of the development of these industries our utility companies provided all three components. What electric natural gas deregulation have done for consumers is to bring some competition to the electric and natural gas markets in the supply component, thereby breaking up the monopoly that these industries have enjoyed for so many years.
